THE OBSERVATOR.

...ence from Montaigne of the happy Effects of Arbitrary Government in France. The ...merit of Obedience without Reserve, fulsom, traitorous, and blasphemous. Why the ...miner ought not to charge the Whigs with being Enemies to the Prerogative. The Persian ...e of Arbitrary Power and Passive Obedience more consistent than that of our Highfliers. ...ers of it propos'd to the Consideration of the Faction; particularly the Persian Courrouks, ...n Account of 'em.

From Wednesday, June 20. to Saturday, June 23. 1711.

YOUR talking of Montaigne last day, Roger, puts me in mind of a Passage mention'd by that Ingenious Author; which may let us ...lessed Effects of that Arbitrary Power, ...oundations were laid in France by Lewis ... the Superstructure compleated by Lewis ...d his Son Lewis XIV. which has turn'd ...rnment there to a Jest.

...ger. Pray what is it, Master?

That Gentleman says, Roger, 'He had ...e wisest Heads of France assembled with ...eremony, and at the publick Expence ...out the greatest and most weighty Af... State, the Decision of which did in the ...e absolutely depend upon the Cabinet... ...f the Ladies, and the Inclinations of ...Women.' This is the happy Scheme ...ent which France has got in exchange ...ée des Notables, that was the same ...Parliaments. From this Mint of She... ...the Medicis, Galigai's, and Mainte... ...proceeded all those High-Church Per... ...Massacres and Oppressions, that France ...groan'd under. To such Counsellors ...Europe owes all those bloody and ex... ...ars which have been occasion'd by the Tyranny, and Usurpations of France: ...ous a thing is it to allow Princes an Ar...ower.

...m. We have reason to bless God, Mas... the Faction has not been able with all ...rts to bring us to the same Condition. ...d think that the Sufferings of our own ... Nations by the absolute and unlimited ... Princes, should put the Party to the ...n they think of their fulsom Compli... Loyalty without Bounds, and Obedience ...serve.

...ey are not only fulsom, but traitorous, ...use against our Laws, which are the ...ur Obedience and of the Prince's Pre... but what is still worse, those Compli... blasphemous, because Obedience without ...Due only to God, who can command ...e what is just; and they are likewise ...al, for no body has shew'd a greater ...to Princes when they happen to thwart ...our, than the Faction. Their Revolt ... late King James, when he took their ... by the Tail, and gave the Rumps of ...pons to his Priests, with their Rebel... ...t the Queen and Parliament in behalf ...rd, are such lasting Marks of it, as all ...or Isis and Cam will never be able to ... Therefore I wou'd advise the Examiner ...aid the Whigs with being Enemies to ...tive, because the Imputation rebounds as much upon his Friends, as the Charge of Sedition in the mouth of the old Roman Gracchi, did upon themselves, who were the most seditious Family in that Commonwealth.

Countrym. Those People who talk of Loyalty without Bounds and Obedience without Reserve, Master, give the Prince as much Power over their Estates, Bodies, and Consciences, as the French-men give their Taylors over their Clothes; which a Venetian Limner rebuk'd very pleasantly, by drawing a French-man naked before his Taylor, laying a Bundle of Cloth with a Pair of Sheers at his feet, and this complaisant Sentence in his mouth, Comme vous voulez, Monsieur; i.e. Make me as great a Monkey as you please, Sir.

Obs. The Comparison is apt enough, Roger. I told you before that our Highflying Loyalists have learnt only one half of the true Doctrine of Passive Obedience, and that therefore they must go to Persia or Turky to learn the whole; or if that be too much trouble, they may get any of our Factors at Gomron or Ispahan to send them one or two Persian Moullahs, or High-Church Mahometan Doctors; and if the Party will be at the charge to provide them a new Mosque here, they may be taught the other half, which is, That Princes are impeccable and can never be damn'd, and that those who submit their Necks to the Bow-string or the Scimiter at the Command of the Sovereign, do certainly go to Paradise. This is the Persian Doctrine, Roger, as Thevenot, Tavernier, with other Travellers, inform us; and no Man can deny but it hangs very well together: for to make a Prince Unaccountable, he ought to be Impeccable; and a Promise of Heaven is proper to encourage Subjects in the Practice of obeying their Princes without Reserve, tho their Precepts be contrary to the Commands of God himself, and the very Laws of Nature, as frequently happens to the Impeccable Princes of Persia, who in a drunken Humour or Frolick will command Fathers and Sons to cut off one another's Heads; which they must obey, or be sure to lose their own. Now, Roger, this is the true Doctrine of Absolute Power in the Prince, who may do what he pleases without hazard of being call'd to an Account for it here or hereafter; and 'tis the true Doctrine of Unlimited Obedience, which not only solves all the Scruples of the Subject relating to the Commands of their Sovereigns, but rewards them with Heaven for giving blind Obedience to 'em.

Countrym. I must own, Master, that the Persian Doctrine rises somewhat higher than the Oxford Decree, which the Lords order'd to be burnt by the Hand of the Hangman; yet the System of the Moullahs seems to be the most consistent of the two, since our High-Church Doctors will own that,

that a Prince may be damn'd for commanding, what the Subjects muſt alſo be damn'd for reſiſting. Now, Maſter, I don't love ſuch double Loads of Damnation, I think one Side's enough to be damn'd at a time; therefore I take the Perſian Scheme to be much more rational than that of Mr. Leſley, the Doctor, the Examiner, and their Brother Abel, our worthy High-Church Quadrumvirate. But pray, Maſter, do theſe Moullahs, or Highflying Doctors, practiſe their Doctrine themſelves, and ſubmit chearfully to the Scimiter and Bowſtring at the pleaſure of their Prince?

Obſ. You may be ſure, Roger, they take care of their own Corps. They are the Interpreters of the Law, and coin Diſtinctions enough in favour of themſelves and their bigotted Followers. They perſuade the People that their own Order is Sacred and Inviolable. Beſides, they have ſo great a power by the Authority of their Sadre or High-Prieſt, who makes himſelf the King's Equal in every thing, and ſometimes uſurps upon him, as the Mufti's do on the Grand Seignior; and they have ſuch an Influence in all Courts of Judicature, of which the Sadre's Deputies are the chief Judges, that 'tis not eaſy or ſafe to meddle with them. They have likewiſe taken care to provide Sanctuaries and Privileges for themſelves and their bigotted Adherents, which ſecure them againſt all Attacks. To that end they have made one of the Gates of the Palace, which they call by the name of Hali, an inviolable Sanctuary; ſo that if the greateſt Criminal can but get in there, and 'tis always kept open, 'tis as good as a Pardon under the Great Seal, and the King himſelf muſt not meddle with them: Or if the greateſt Villain in Nature make a Pilgrimage to Mecca, or to the Sepulchres of any of their own Saints, of which they have many, he is ever after reputed an honeſt Man, and muſt not be touch'd nor contradicted, tho he commit the moſt abominable Crimes, or tell and ſwear the greateſt Falſhoods.

Countrym. I commend them, Maſter: They may very well preach up the Doctrine of Slavery and Obedience without Reſerve to others, ſince they are ſo well ſecur'd againſt the Effects of it themſelves, and that no Man muſt touch their hallow'd Cloth. That's Prieſtcraft in Perfection, and what our Highfliers mightily want, That their Parſons ſhould have a liberty to roaſt every body, but that none may roaſt them. What pity 'tis that they can't obtain ſuch a Law in England, and for their Jacobite Brethren in Scotland, that they ſhould be ſecur'd againſt Impeachments, and all other Proſecutions whatever. I make no doubt, Maſter, but when the Babe of Grace arrives from St. Germains, he will reſtore the Immunities of the Clergy with the Church Lands, and make every Church and Chappel a Sanctuary for High-Church Criminals, as in the days of Yore, that it ſhan't be in the power of the Secular Judges, nor in the Houſe of Lords themſelves, to touch a Hair of their Heads.

Obſ. You know the Proverb, Roger, That one Kindneſs requires another. The Mahometan Princes can do no leſs than make their Prieſts Sacred and Inviolable, ſince they make the People believe them to be ſo. Tyrants can't poſſeſs the abſolute Power they are ſo fond of, without indulging thoſe who are the Inſtruments and Abettors of their Tyranny, eſpecially their Clergy, that have the Conduct of the People. By this means the Perſians are made ſuch tame Slaves, that how extravagant ſoever the Commands of their Kings be, they obey them without Reſerve; and the ces accordingly put their Loyalty to the proof, not only by their Commands, but Prohibitions, which they name Courrouks. when the King has a mind, he will prohi ſort of Proviſion to be eat, except by him his Court, for what time he pleaſes; ſo t a Woman long, or a ſick Perſon want tha Food to ſupport them, they can't have it.

Countrym. I verily believe, Maſter, th ny of our Princes ſhould put our High Party to ſuch a Teſt, they would be for r it. I dare venture to ſay, that if a Ki Queen did lay a Courrouk upon French W any thing elſe that our Tory Good-Fellow riot in, they would be filthily troubled Grumbling in the Gizzard, and break t rouk twenty times a Week, notwithſtand Doctrine of Obedience without Reſerve as they did when the late King James touch their own Copyhold.

Obſ. The Kings of Perſia make uſe of ſort of Courrouk; which is, that when t a mind to paſs thro their Capital of Iſpa their Kennel of Concubines, all the Men tire ſo many Miles from the City o Death; and if any of them be found w Limits preſcrib'd, the Eunuchs or Geld attend thoſe Ladies of Pleaſure, knock the Head immediately without Mercy. very Guards, who attend the King's Per keep at a certain diſtance, with their wards the Court, leſt they ſhould ogle t and if any of them, be he Officer or S but a Glance at them over their Sh Eunuchs, who are ſet to be Spies upo them forthwith. And 'tis the ſame w bility and Gentry of the Country, whe has a mind to travel any where with h or Sty of Proſtitutes.

Countrym. A bleſſed Conſtitution ind ter! I am verily perſuaded that the gr ry of them all, who agreed to the A Charles II's time, that made it unlawf the King, or thoſe who had his Comm any pretence whatever, would have had the King thought fit to lay ſuch a C the Citizens of London, when he had paſs thro the City with Nell Gwyn, t of Cleaveland, the Dutcheſs of Portſ and that the higheſt Paſſive-Obedience Gentleman of them all would have don had he publiſh'd a Courrouk, and gone with his Ladies thro their Eſtates, an Country-Houſes.

Obſ. I can tell you further, Roger, fo nour of Arbitrary Power and Obedien Reſerve, That when the King of Perſia to try the Swiftneſs and Strength of h in running a Race, all the Citizens of honour the Solemnity with their Pre Grand Chace, on pain of being cud their Shops and Houſes, and drove li Beaſts to ſee the Race.

Countrym. Better and better ſtill, M pity but the Tory-Citizens and Com Men of London had been put to ſuch their Loyalty, by a Frolick of that n Reign of King Charles II. It would the Courtiers a brave Opportunity mong their Wives and Daughters, Husbands and Fathers were ſo honou tain'd in Hide Park.

June 29. The 20th came in Her Majeſty's

peedy Determination of the Differences between them, deliver'd in their Pretenſions to the States; which having been ſeverally examined by the Deputies, they have thereupon renew'd a Plan heretofore projected during the Minority of the Prince, which it is hoped will direct them to ſuch Expedients as will be ſufficient for an Accommodation. Our Advices from Spain by the way of Genoa import, that Count Staremberg having not agreed to the Exchange of Priſoners as ſetled by General Stanhope, the latter was thereupon returned to Saragoſſa, where it is thought the Conferences in relation to that Affair will ſpeedily be reaſſumed. Theſe Letters add, that his Grace the Duke of Argyle was arrived at Barcelona. A Quarter-Maſter-General is come hither from the Rhine, and has given the Prince of Savoy an Account of the Condition the Troops are in in thoſe Parts; by which it appears that the Army is already ſtrengthened to eight and twenty thouſand Men, and ſo poſted that a few more Reinforcements will put the Germans in a Condition of apprehending nothing from any Attempts on the part of the Enemy: Whereupon a Courier was diſpatch'd on Friday Night laſt with Orders to the Forces near Bruſſels, conſiſting of eight Battalions and twelve Squadrons of Imperial and Palatine Troops to continue their March to the Rhine; and the other Forces, of which that Detachment was compoſed, are to ſtay 'till further Orders, and rejoin the Grand Army, as the Prince of Savoy intends likewiſe to do very ſpeedily. The Earl of Peterborough arrived here the 28th in the Evening, and having been Yeſterday and this Day in Conference with the King of Pruſſia, the Prince of Savoy, the Grand Pentionary, and ſeveral other Perſons of Diſtinction, his Lordſhip deſigns to leave this Place to Morrow, in order to embark on Board the firſt Packet-Boat bound for England.
